

Happy HoliYAYS!!!

Americo v. Lovera

In 2015, a Jeep driver attempted to make a lane change without checking his blind spot. He encroached in our clients' lane and forced their vehicle off the roadway into landscaping rocks and trees. Our clients were a father and daughter out for a Driver's Ed trip. The daughter had her permit and the father was teaching her.

The father suffered severe injuries resulting in both cervical and lumbar spine surgeries. The daughter suffered cervical spine strain and temporomandibular joint dysfunction requiring surgery.

After filing suit, unbelievably, the driver that encroached on our clients car, tried to blame them, claiming the daughter was too inexperienced to avoid him when he broke the traffic safety rules. Ganz & Hauf was able to successfully resolve the daughter's matter for $100,000 and the father's matter for $1,250,000.
